Average Temperatures In Alaska In December Shatter Existing Record

Climate scientists have been warning us for decades that global warming will affect polar regions first. If that is so — assuming those scientists are not all being paid by the Chinese to perpetrate a giant fraud on the world — then the latest reports from Alaska should be truly alarming. In December, 2017, the average temperature in Alaska was 19.4° F according to a report from NOAA. That's 2.1° F more than the previous high temperature record set in 1985. For the month, Alaska was a startling 15.7° F warmer on average when compared to data going back to 1925.

The winter that wouldn't end: cold continues, sets records

UPDATE Tuesday 4/10/2018: We got snow again today in State College, PA. The irony is that flowers bloomed a month earlier in 2012 so I had trouble taking that flowers-with-snow photo this year (this photo was taken next to AccuWeather's warm building where flowers have started to bloom).

MOST SKIN CANCERS ARE CAUSED BY THE SUN'S UVA AND UVB ULTRAVIOLET (UV) RAYS
UVA RAYS
UVB RAYS
TAN
DARK PATCHES
WRINKLES
LOOSE SKIN
PREMATURE AGING
DNA DAMAGE
SUNBURNS
EYE PROBLEMS
UVA and UVB rays cause DNA damage, which greatly increases skin cancer risk.

"Others are engaging even in an eco-type of terrorism whereby they can alter the climate, set off earthquakes, volcanoes remotely through the use of electromagnetic waves... So there are plenty of ingenious minds out there that are at work finding ways in which they can wreak terror upon other nations...It's real, and that's the reason why we have to intensify our efforts."
